archiving
the present

Artwork by Siddhesh Gautam

Summer School 2027

Apply by 18 December 2026

About seven days in Bengaluru, between the end of April and mid-May 2027

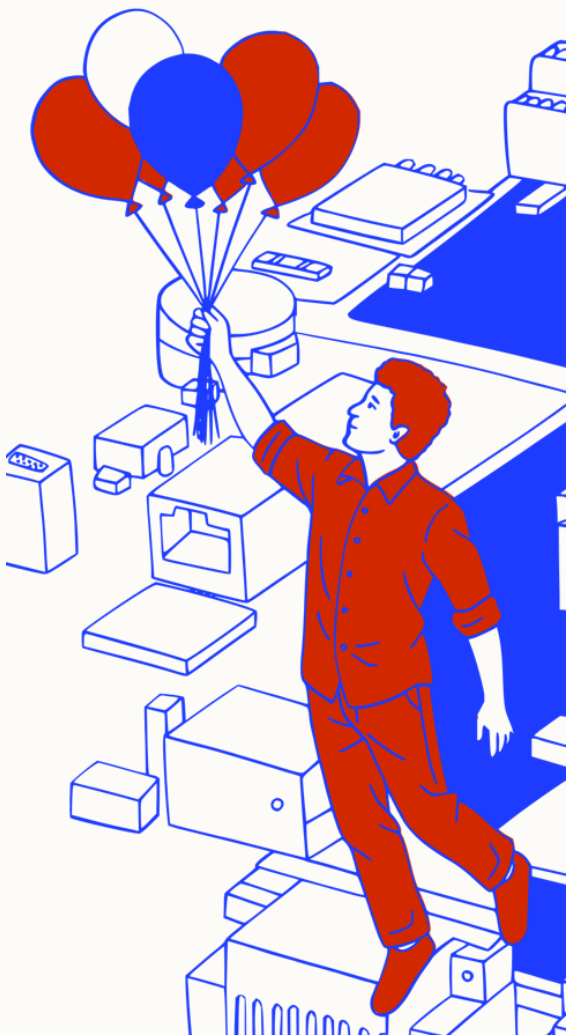

Swipe to read →

About seven days in Bengaluru

An in-person training on recording, describing and archiving endangered languages in audio and video.

Resource persons from language communities, Endangered Languages Archive (ELAR), People's Archive of Rural India (PARI), OpenSpeaks and other collaborators will conduct training.

Between the end of April and mid-May 2027.

Apply

archivingthepresent.cc/events/summer-school-2027/apply

Who can apply

Documenters and archivists of endangered languages who are 18 or older.

We'll bring together around 25 participants. Most places are for people living in India, and one or two are for people from Bangladesh, Bhutan, Maldives, Nepal or Sri Lanka.

You don't need a degree or past documentation experience.

Apply

archivingthepresent.cc/events/summer-school-2027/apply

Languages we give priority to

Languages with only a few thousand speakers or fewer, and that fewer children are learning at home.

Apply

archivingthepresent.cc/events/summer-school-2027/apply

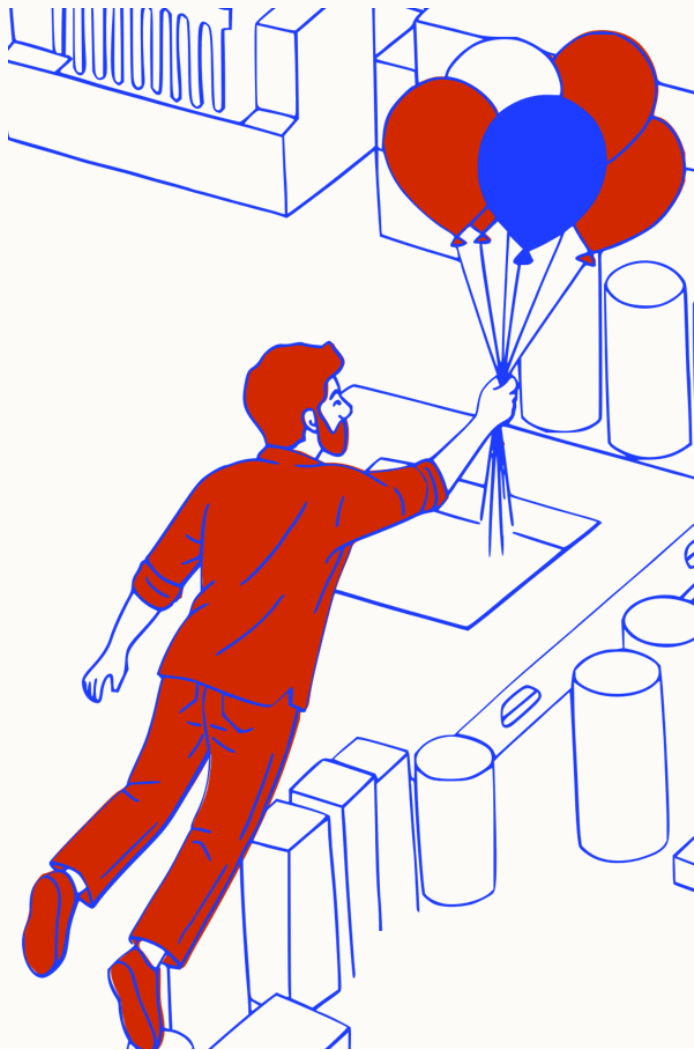

We cover travel and stay

- A round-trip flight when the train or bus journey to Bengaluru would take more than 13 hours.
- Train or bus tickets for shorter journeys.
- Accommodation in Bengaluru for the whole summer school.

Apply

archivingthepresent.cc/events/summer-school-2027/apply

How we select

A small jury reads every application. You can apply in Hindi or English.

Not every applicant can be part of this cohort, but we hope to stay connected with everyone through our online training and the Archiving the Present network.

Apply

archivingthepresent.cc/events/summer-school-2027/apply

Apply now

archivingthepresent.cc/events/summer-school-2027/apply

Applications close on 18 December 2026.

Questions? Write to hello@archivingthepresent.cc

Please share this with documenters, archivists and community groups working with endangered languages.

archiving the present